INMATES INDICTED FOR BRUTAL ASSAULTS IN THE JAIL

Some Defendants Had Left Rikers, But Are Still Accountable for Violence There;
Gang Members Attacked Other Inmates and Two Correction Officers in Four Incidents,
One Inmate/Victim Needed 100 Stitches for Numerous Wounds

Bronx District Attorney Darcel D. Clark today announced that 29 gang members have been indicted in attacks on fellow inmates and two New York City Department of Correction Officers in Rikers Island.

District Attorney Clark said, “Some of these defendants may have thought they were free and clear for crimes on Rikers Island because they had left there, but if you beat, slash or stab anyone while in jail we will arrest you, prosecute you and urge consecutive sentences if you’re convicted.

Acting Department of Correction Commissioner Cynthia Brann said, “These arrests send a clear message: If you violently assault our hardworking staff or people in our custody, you will suffer certain consequences. We thank the Bronx D.A, the NYPD, the court, and our Correction Intelligence Bureau and Investigation Division for their work on these cases.”
