Bronx District Attorney Darcel D. Clark today announced that 10 people have been variously charged with Murder, Attempted Murder, and weapons charges for a series of retaliatory shootings surrounding Labor Day weekend that left four people dead and seven wounded.

District Attorney Clark said, “A total of 10 defendants, three of whom are under 18, are charged in two mass shootings at summer’s end that killed three people, including 17-year-old Anthonaya Campbell, and in a third shooting that claimed a man’s life. Nearly 60 shots were fired in Haffen Park, and more than a dozen bullets flew on busy Allerton Avenue.

“We cannot and will not stand for such brazen violence and bloodshed in our communities. Thirteen guns were recovered during the investigations, and some of the firearms are linked by ballistics to 13 other incidents of gunfire. It is time for a concerted, precise and fierce effort with the NYPD and our federal partners to stem the prolific weapons.”

Between August 23, 2025, and September 2, 2025, there were three deadly shootings in the Bronx, two of them mass shootings in which five people were shot. NYPD Detectives from the 47th, 48th, 49th Precinct Squads and Bronx Homicide investigating the shootings recovered 13 guns: ten 9-mm pistols, two .45-caliber pistols and a .380-caliber pistol. The NYPD Gun Violence Suppression Division and Firearms Analysis Section tied five of the 13 guns to 13 other incidents of gunfire throughout the Bronx and elsewhere in the city, as well as to a shooting in Mount Vernon and one in South Carolina. Ballistics from Haffen Park are also tied to ballistic evidence from eight other shootings.
