Bronx District Attorney Darcel D. Clark today announced that a man has been indicted for first-degree Rape and other related charges in a violent sexual assault on a woman in her building stairwell.

District Attorney Clark said, "This defendant is charged with a frightening and life-altering attack on an innocent woman in the place where she lives. We will hold him accountable for this violence and provide the victim with the support she needs to overcome the trauma."

District Attorney Clark said the defendant, Kenneth Siriboe, 21, was arraigned today on first-degree Rape, first-degree Burglary, second-degree Robbery, second-degree Burglary, first-degree Sexual Abuse, third-degree Robbery and Sexual Misconduct by Bronx Supreme Court Justice Eugene Bowen. According to the investigation, on September 28, 2025, at approximately 5:00 a.m., in the Norwood section, the 36-year-old woman arrived to her building and Siriboe allegedly approached her in the stairwell, covered her mouth, choked her and threw her to the ground and raped her. The attack was captured on video including audio of the victim's pleas to stop. Siriboe was arrested on September 29, 2025, wearing the same clothes seen in the video.
