BRONX MAN SENTENCED TO FOUR YEARS IN PRISON FOR SEXUALLY ABUSING TEEN
Defendant Was Convicted After Jury Trial

Bronx District Attorney Darcel D. Clark today announced that a Bronx man was sentenced to four years in prison for third-degree Criminal Sexual Act for sexually assaulting a teenage girl.

District Attorney Clark said, “The defendant sexually assaulted the victim while she was celebrating her 13th birthday, and then repeatedly abused her for years. Today, he is being held accountable for his heinous actions. We continue to offer support services to the victim.”

District Attorney Clark said Mushin Morshed, 65, of the Bronx, was sentenced on January 20, 2026, to four years in prison and three years post release supervision for third-degree Criminal Sexual Act, second-degree Sexual Abuse and Endangering the Welfare of A Child by Bronx Supreme Court Justice Laurence Busching. He was convicted by a jury on October 8, 2025.

According to the facts at trial, the defendant sexually assaulted the 13-year-old in 2017 while she was celebrating her 13th birthday. He continued abusing the victim. In one incident he sexually abused the victim while she was getting ready to celebrate Eid with her family. The defendant carried out the assaults when she had other family members in her home.

The case was prosecuted by Major Case Assistant District Attorney Victoria Nuñez and Assistant District Attorney Dana Snay of the Child Abuse/Sex Crimes Bureau, under the supervision of Mimi Mairs, Chief of the Child Abuse/Sex Crimes Bureau, and under the overall supervision of Adrienne Guinta, Deputy Chief of the Special Victims Division and Joseph Muroff, Chief of the Special Victims Division.
